Course Description

This dermatology symposium brings together nationally and internationally recognized faculty to address a variety of hot topics in dermatology vis-à-vis evaluation and management of common and exceptional dermatologic disorders.

Target Audience

This program is specifically designed to be of particular interest to physicians and residents specializing in dermatology and dermatopathology. Nevertheless, we encourage any physician (e.g., Internist, Pediatrician, Family Practice physician) or physician extenders (nurse practitioners or physician assistants) with an interest in skin and/or whose practice includes the frequent evaluation and management of skin disease to attend. A basic understanding of dermatology is assumed for all attendees.

Objectives

At the conclusion of the course, participants should be able to:

- Know the types of, and indications of usage for vaccines to prevent infectious diseases.
- Order appropriate vaccinations in patients with complex dermatology disorders.
- Identify the geographic distribution and clinical manifestations of systemic tropical diseases that have associated dermatologic findings.
- Recognize the various presentations of benign and malignant cutaneous tumors.
- Describe the role of hedgehog signaling pathways in basal cell carcinoma (BCC) and its implication for treatment of BCC and the utility of this targeted therapy.
- Define aggressive characteristics of common forms of skin cancer and select the best treatment approach.
- Identify the geographic distribution and clinical manifestations of systemic tropical diseases that have associated dermatologic findings.
- Recognize the various presentations of benign and malignant cutaneous tumors.
- Describe the role of hedgehog signaling pathways in basal cell carcinoma (BCC) and its implication for treatment of BCC and the utility of this targeted therapy.
- Define aggressive characteristics of common forms of skin cancer and select the best treatment approach.
- Differentiate between allergic and non-allergic causes of dermatitis at specific anatomic regions.
- Recognize new and unusual allergens reported in the recent literature.
- Determine the etiology of chronic urticaria and the role played by contact allergy in chronic urticaria.
- Differentiate between benign and malignant cutaneous lymphoid infiltrates.
- Utilize the National Comprehensive Cancer Network Clinical Practice Guidelines for staging and management of cutaneous lymphoma.

Adjourn

Dr. Lee Lumpkin Memorial Lecture

Lee R. Lumpkin, M.D. was head of the Division of Dermatology and Professor of Medicine at the Albany Medical College from 1972 to 1991. He graduated from the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine in 1953. His residency in dermatology was at Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington, D.C. and he completed a dermatopathology fellowship in 1965 at the AFIP. Dr. Lumpkin was a United States Air Force dermatologist from 1961 to 1972. He was Chief of Service and director of the residency program in dermatology at Wilford Hall USAF Medical Center, Lackland Air Force Base, Texas from 1969 to 1972. He retired as a full colonel from the United States Air Force and came to the Albany Medical College of Union University where he was director of the residency program in dermatology from 1972 to 1982. He retired from the practice of medicine in 1991. He was a diplomat of the American Board of Dermatology, and a fellow of the American College of Physicians, the American Academy of Dermatology and the American Society of Dermatopathology. Dr. Lumpkin was a superb physician, a brilliant dermatologist, an excellent professor and an extraordinary teacher. His residents and students respected all aspects of the great physician and fine person that he was. Although he passed on June 3rd, 1997 a part of Dr. Lee R. Lumpkin lives on in the residents they give to their patients.
