Philip Ball was interviewed by AMBI's consultant David Lemberg. Mr. Ball discussed his new book, "Unnatural: The Heretical Idea of Making People", on AMBI's Blog: Bioethics Today. Mr. Ball previously worked for over 20 years as an editor for the international science journal Nature and continues to regularly contribute essays to the journal. He discussed in vitro fertilization, embryonic stem cell research, and cloning; the relevance of the idea of artificial procreation for society today; and whether should limits be imposed on technology. Here's the link.